

How did it all start?

Meet Jeanne MacLaughlin, and me, Barb Horton. We met ten years ago, at a class in the middle of corporate America in Scottsdale, Arizona when I took a seat next to her. Throughout that day, we discovered that meeting was no coincidence. By noon we discovered:

Barb and Jeanne

- We're both professional singers
- Both have a background in theatre
- Our mothers were born one day apart in 1936.
- We both grew up on a street named "Dewey". "So?" you ask. Jeanne grew up in Wisconsin, and myself in New Jersey.
- We'd both been praying for a friend.

We've been singing together ever since.

Where does the music come from?

One day in the winter of 2006, Jeanne gets a call from her friend, Doug. His church was looking to audition a vocalist, and Jeanne asked if she could bring me along, too. When we got there, we made our introductions in the bookstore. As we chatted, the books started catching our attention. Authors like Wayne Dyer, and Deepak Choprah, Miguel Ruiz and others jumped out at us as we realized we were in the midst of our personal libraries. "What is this place?" we asked. "Unity of Mesa." said the Reverend Joel Baehr.

We auditioned, and were hired before we finished the first song. We've been singing there ever since (January 2007), and this is where the music is born. Each week, the Reverend tells us the theme of Sunday's lesson, and our entire church helps us create the intention of a new song, and pulls the music through us.

Enter four incredible musicians and one extraordinary band.

This is also where we met our extraordinary band: John Chapman on upright bass, Jason Fay on drums, Brian Palmerino on guitar, and Jimmy Boyd on piano. We show up with a chorded lyric sheet at 8am on Sundays, and in less than an hour, this incredible band breathes life and style into the music. We are so blessed by their incredible talent.

Greater than the sum of all our parts, together we are

The Jaja's.

Jeanne Mac Laughlin Singer, songwriter, and certified Life Coach, believes that everyone has the answers to all of their life's questions within. Jeanne's eclectic musical influences include R&B greats Aretha Franklin and Tina Turner, as well as the powerful voices of Whitney Houston and Bette Middler. Jeanne lives in Phoenix, Arizona, where she has performed professionally as and served as a music minister for about 15 years. She is also an exceptional motivational speaker and Life Coach, who's coaching sessions are focused, creative, and grounded in reality. Jeanne enjoys living in Phoenix with her husband Charles. Together they enjoy mountain biking, hiking and camping.

Barbara Horton Singer and songwriter, believes in the transformational power of music. Barbara, who began writing music at age 13, believes that every person has a song within. Although her vocal style was primarily influenced by blues and pop artists, Barb's voice has a style of its own. Barb has performed professionally in the Phoenix area for over 20 years. She also operates a home recording studio, where she has helped many individuals uncover and record their own unique songs from within. Barb lives in Gilbert with her husband David, and daughter, Faith. Together, they enjoy boating, camping and exploring the beautiful mountains of northern Arizona.

Jeanne and Barb have both served as music ministers at Unity of Mesa since January 2007 under Reverend Joel Baehr. They released their first "Poz" music CD in October 2007 called Pieces of Life, and expect to release two additional CDs by June of 2008.

"After listening to the CD from The JaJa's I was blown away! The music, the harmonies and arrangements are such a match to the great vocal talents of these wonderful singers. The music and the message inspires, uplifts and you'll be singing and dancing along!"
